

Spring...An awakening of new life and new growth

Horizon House opens in Niagara

Official opening and dedication services for Horizon House — Niagara, located in Welland, Ont., was held April 29. The Christian home for mentally retarded persons is operated by Christian Horizons, an interdenominational organization with headquarters in Waterloo, Ont.

The Welland home has facilities for eight persons, along with a resident staff. Some 150 persons from as far away as Florida and Vancouver, B.C. attended the opening. A service of dedication was held outside on the front lawn and featured Christian Horizons president, Dr. Gordon Bergman as well as evangelist Rev. Jim Reeves, past president of the association.

There was a lot of involvement by members of the Christian Reformed community. A number attended the open house and have been active as volunteers to prepare the house for the official opening. Even the cookies at the open house "tasted" Christian Reformed!

Following the opening ceremonies, there was a business meeting and dinner in a nearby Baptist church which began by the showing of the film, Retarded and Beautiful.

During the business portion, a board of directors of 15 persons was elected. The executive includes Dr. Gordon Bergman, chairman; Murray Spence, vice-chairman; Rev. John Klomps of Hamilton (First) CRC, vice-chairman; Helen Walterhouse, secretary; Rev. John Totafurno, treasurer; and evangelist Rev. Jim Reese as past president.

Christian Horizons was established 13 years ago and has been confined to operating within Ontario but it recently received its Canadian charter and approval for a U.S. charter is coming shortly.

This means that a number of these Christian homes for the mentally retarded will be established across North America. Short-range plans call for the establishment of residences in Leamington, Brampton and Muskoka, Ont., as well as in Michigan.

The membership approved a budget in excess of half a million dollars, some of it coming from government funding and some from donations and bequests.

Christian Horizons was established

Third high school for Peninsula

A third Christian secondary school is planned for the Niagara Peninsula region of Southern Ontario. During a recent membership meeting of Hamilton District Christian High School in Hamilton, Ont., the membership decided to open a new secondary school in the Smithville area, serving the central part of the Peninsula. The school is scheduled to open in September, 1979.

Principal John Top reported on the fast-growing enrollment of the Hamilton school since it opened in 1959. The school began with a small enrollment of 53 students and grew to 230 in 1965. Five years later it had increased to 286 and swelled to 445 students in the current school year. Expected enrollment for the next school year is set at 470, making even the portable classroom facilities overcrowded.

The HDCH membership approved the purchase of property in Smithville for $65,000 with a further $600,000 earmarked for construction of a school on the site, one large enough to accommodate 200 students.

The Smithville secondary school will draw its support from the surrounding areas of Wellandport, Grimsby, Fruitland, Dunnville and Smithville. A fundraising campaign will be launched to collect $500,000 over a three year period.

The Hamilton secondary school will operate on a $602,000 budget for the next school year. Tuition is based on family income and ranges from $1,400 to $2,700 per family. The school offers a diversified curriculum covering basic academic areas, electives in business education, home economics.

The Niagara Peninsula is also served by Beacon Christian High School in St. Catharines which has an enrollment of about 215. The creation of the third school would mean an enrollment of about 200 students per school.

in 1965, deeply concerned for the welfare of retarded people of all ages and ability levels. In addition to providing residential programs, there is an active summer camp program which involves hundreds of children each summer.

Three camping sessions will be held this summer at two different locations, Camp Oak-a-leaf and Bluewater Christian Conference Grounds. Registration for this summer's programs, held during July and August, is almost complete and there are only a few vacancies left at the Bluewater camp.

The success and acceptance of the summer camp program points out the need for such programs and the hopeful establishment of more camps in the future.

There are presently only two homes in operation by Christian Horizons, the one in Welland and the one in Waterloo which opened a year ago. As funding becomes available, more of these Christian homes will be established.

Further information is available by writing Christian Horizons, 17 Union Street East, Waterloo, Ont. N2J 1B5.

Church backs easier divorce

TORONTO (CCP)—A united Church brief supports Law Reform Commission recommendations which would make divorce easier, and also urges federal and provincial governments to establish stronger counselling and support services for families.

While recognizing that both relationships and the institution of marriage are important, the church statement leans towards emphasis on the relationship. "We believe that the institution of marriage is more likely to be protected by supporting and enriching the relationship, than that the relationship is likely to be upheld by strengthening the institution."

It recognizes marriages do fail, that marriage as an institution isn't helped by ignoring that fact, and the "gospel affirms for everyone the possibility of forgiveness and beginning again with new hope, insight and determination."

(The United Church has recommended reform of Canada's divorce laws at several General Councils.)

Written by the Division of Mission in Canada's marriage guidance council, the statement is a response to a report on family law of the Law Reform Commission of Canada. The church report has been sent to Ron Basford, minister of justice, who will deal with the law reform report, now in pre-bill stage.

The Church council agreed with principles of the report which included: replacing the concept of matrimonial offence with "failure of relationships" as the basis for divorce (the report suggests marriage breakdown as the sole grounds for divorce, conclusively established by the evidence of one spouse); seeking an end to the adversary principle and punitive attitudes to divorce; emphasizing negotiation, counselling and reconciliation procedures provided without cost; bringing all marriage and family matters within one family court, based on federal-provincial co-operation.

The Church also emphasizes that the court should encourage separating couples to seek counselling before final decisions are made.

The Rev. Robin Smith, who works in the area of marriage and family living nationally for the United Church, says the council is concerned about the training of counsellors for this kind of service, and hopes the government is prepared to put the money into the program to make it work.

Retarded and beautiful

His name was Dave. He was 29 years old, well dressed in a three-piece gray suit and he was smiling. It was no ordinary smile because he was no ordinary man. He was special.

Dave is among the first of the residents to move into a Christian home for mentally retarded people and his face was beaming as he attended the official opening and dedication of his new home (see page 1).

He appeared as normal as you and I. No unusual features. He was mentally slow...retarded, and his mind was that of a child. He glorified in the presence of his parents who drove north from Florida to be with him, and his grandmother who flew in from Vancouver. Dave showed visitors just where his bedroom was and opened his dresser drawers to boast of his possessions.

Dave was a Christian. He loved the Lord, and now he was living in a Christian home with seven other adults and with a staff of dedicated Christians who lived in the home, too.

It was something new for us as Reformed Christians. We have been busy during the last generation to establish Christian schools at three levels, to get involved in Christian labor, agriculture and politics. But here was a social ministry among special children which God has entrusted to us. It was interdenominational, mainly because these kinds of homes need a broad base of support.

This home will be different from others in the city. The others are humanitarian in nature. This one is spiritual in nature. There is firstly that Christ-like love and affection for His children; whether those children are 8 or 29 or 43 years old. There is also prayer and devotions that add meaning and depth to their lives. There are hymns to be taught and sung and work to be done.

You could easily rename the home a Christian Nurturing Centre because that is exactly what happens there. Those broken minds are watered and fed with love, affection, the Bible and songs. They are nurtured with Christ-like things so that those minds, as feeble and broken as they are, will be able to proclaim the majesty of God to all the world.

These kinds of homes are needed. There is no question about that. As Reformed Christians we see the need for God in all of our lives. Whenever we turn around we see new challenges which God has placed before us. There is never an end to the amount of involvement which God must have in our lives.

Not so long ago we used to differentiate between "kingdom work" and "ordinary work". It seemed as though ministers, elders, deacons, missionaries were involved in the noble cause of "kingdom work" while the rest of us seemed to toil in vain, carrying out our daily tasks as best we could.

But that is not Reformed. Our whole life is to be lived for God. We are all involved in kingdom work. Workers within the organized church have no monopoly on working and living close to God. We can all experience that each day and we must live close to God in all that we do.

We as Christians must minister to the mentally retarded child as well as to the mentally alert parent. We must practice our Christianity in business, in labor negotiations, behind the plow, in education, wherever we go. That does not mean that we have to wait for an organization to come along before we can proclaim Christ in the area of, say social welfare.

Being a Christ-follower means that we must personally stand up for Jesus, wherever we are and whatever we do.

Quebec with Claude Ryan

Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan will be a strong leader for a party which has gone without a helmsman for some 18 months. In Mr. Ryan, the Liberals have found a man of high personal stature. He reflects authority, honesty and integrity. He is an intellectual, not unlike his federal counterpart, Pierre Trudeau.

Mr. Ryan is a progressive conservative in the truest sense, with equal emphasis on the two words. The Quebec Liberal party is basically small "c" conservative, a role which was carved out for it by former leader and premier, Robert Bourassa, while the Parti Quebecois government adds to its separatist platform by presenting itself as a party of radical reform.

But there are a number of questions about Mr. Ryan's abilities which can only be answered by time. It remains to be seen, first of all, whether the qualities that made him such an outstanding journalist can be translated into the political arena.

The new Liberal leader is an advocate of the "two nations" theory and of special status for Quebec. He wants to restructure the 10 provinces into five regions: while each region would be free to choose from a wide range of federal programs and administer its own policies instead, Quebec would in practice make much more use of this scheme than the others.

The suggestion of restructuring the nation into five regions is both naive and insensitive when it comes from a man who, as a Quebecker, understands the importance of cultural ties and identifications: residents of Newfoundland or Prince Edward Island would not want to give up their identity any more than would New Brunswick or Nova Scotia.

But if Mr. Ryan eventually becomes premier and his proposals are turned down by the federal government — as they probably will — the danger is that he might well conclude that Confederation has been given its last chance and failed.

So, while the rest of Canada feels safe in the knowledge that the Quebec Liberal party can offer a solid alternative to the separatist cause in the person of Claude Ryan, he too seeks special status for his province.

The PQ victory in 1976, which resulted largely from an anti-Bourassa vote, has increased the awareness of the Quebecois that they indeed need and deserve special status within Confederation. Claude Ryan does not find separatism as the solution to their special needs...at least, not yet. He will no doubt attempt to negotiate with the federal government for some special considerations for Quebec and that is exactly what Premier Rene Levesque is doing right now.

Claude Ryan sees Quebec's future within Canada possible. Rene Levesque sees Quebec's future within Canada as damaging its cultural identity.

"From Him are all things":

Christian Education
Acknowledges God
As The Source

It is obvious that the philosophy of education that undergirds the Christian school must differ quite drastically from the philosophy of secular humanism found within the non-Christian school. The ontological question of "What is real?", the epistemological question of "What is true?", and the axiological question of "What is good?" are answered quite distinctively by the Christian educator.

A Christian philosophy of education first of all acknowledges God as Sovereign Lord over all; secondly, it shows concern for those things that are spiritual; and, thirdly, it orients its thoughts within an eternal framework (I Corinthians 4:16-18).

Secular humanism, on the other hand, places man in the center of the universe; it shows concern for those things that are material; and, it orients its thought solely within a temporal framework.

Not only does the Christian philosophy of education differ, but the Christian psychology of education differs as well. In addition to being the Source of created reality — the raw material of the curriculum within the Christian school, God is the Creator of the child who is to study and develop that creation. The two, in fact, were made for each other. They fit together, like hand and glove.

The child in the Christian school is acknowledged as a totally religious being, created by design, not by chance, and given the spark of life by the Sovereign God. As a religious being, he possesses an intrinsic desire to worship. Each of his thoughts, words, and actions contains religious significance. He is either responding in thankfulness and obedience to his Creator, or he is, in essence, worshipping another. The child is also viewed as a creature of the Creator. He is not autonomous. He is dependent rather than independent. And, he is seen as one who is unique, with special talents, characteristics, and traits.

Scripture also states that each child bears the image of God. He is given a task; he is placed in creation; and, he is given the abilities necessary to fulfill the mandate given in Genesis 1:28 "to subdue and to have dominion." The child is to be equipped within the Christian school to carry out his task as a vice-regent responsible for God's creation. The child is guided towards service as a prophet — one who shares the truth with others; as a priest — one who mediates relationships with God, man, and creation; and as a king — one who administers the world that God has created.

But the child is also recognized as one who is a sinner in need of a Savior. All activities of the Christian school orient themselves toward guiding children and young people to a right relationship, first of all, with God, and then with themselves, others, and creation.

In summary, God is acknowledged within the Christian school as the Source and Truth. The child is viewed as a totally religious being. In fact, all of life is seen as being religious. Each thought, attitude, and action is either offered to God in worship or it is offered to a false god. All is "from Him."

In prison ... and she visited me

by Ryan Veeneman

Mr. Veeneman is CRWM missionary to Central America.

Last summer, Ryan was involved in a tragic truck accident on a dangerous mountain road in Central Mexico. Though the accident was not his fault, he was put in jail over the weekend in an isolated town which for years had been hostile to Protestants. There were only a few Protestant Christians in the community, and in this article Ryan tells about one woman and her loving concern for a fellow believer who was in prison.

Guadalupe Hernandez has lived her entire life in those mountains, isolated from the world, and her compassionate face carries the marks of a hard life. Guadalupe lives off a small store that she runs in a room of her humble home. Five years ago, through a contact with a Christian Reformed missionary, she accepted Jesus as her Saviour and Lord. At that time she was given a Bible and Bible dictionary.

The next five years of Guadalupe's life were difficult. She was one of the very few Protestants in a town composed of proud traditional Roman Catholics. Having no Christian fellowship outside her own sons, she faced the difficulties with the strength she found in her small library. The power of the Holy Spirit through those books helped her to face the slander and suspicion of her townsmen, and her kind manner and loving concern witnessed to the truth and power of the Gospel.

When Guadalupe heard that I, a fellow Protestant, had been jailed, she immediately came to find out how she could help. Without a word about her own poverty, Guadalupe brought to my cell delicious home cooking. Her concern and generosity witnessed to the strength of the life which was inside of her.

Guadalupe had heard that Americans only eat white bread with their meals and not the tortillas that are the staple of the Mexican people. Because she had that idea, she brought me a fresh loaf of white bread with every meal instead of the cheaper-priced tortillas. She did everything she could to help me, and her presence changed my stay in jail from being a time of fear and loneliness to a rich experience of the presence and love of God.

When I think back over the years of loneliness Guadalupe must have spent in that town, I praise the Lord for that divine love which breaks down human barriers. While many church members complain that they don't get enough attention from their pastors, and some Christians go off searching for a "friendlier" church, we can learn from a woman like Guadalupe Hernandez to give thanks for the blessings we enjoy in such great measure as we commune with other members of the family of God.

NOTE: Subsequent to writing this article, Ryan Veeneman's wife, Julie was seriously injured in an auto accident in Honduras. We are happy to report that she is recovering satisfactorily from those injuries.

Next five years are crucial for Edmonton

The development of the Christian Reformed community in Edmonton, one of the largest in Canada, is an interesting happening to watch. How and in what ways it comes out of it's immigrant-mentality is a fascinating thing to watch and participate in. Will the Lord preserve us as the true Church-community in the decades to come? Some of the developments in the next five years will greatly influence us for the next fifty years, I suspect. The next five years will see much re-alignment of membership in the churches and the likely emergence of perhaps four new churches. One can almost feel the interest and vitality in these matters. I sense something of a pioneer spirit in our midst.

A major development, aside from the formation of churches, which will have it's own impact on the total community, is the beginning of the King's College on or off the U of A campus. This school of higher learning will undoubtedly influence the C.R. community greatly. There will be an influx of highly educated leaders and the input of hundreds of students, of marriageable age, will not go unnoticed. What a blessing and stimulus such an institution can be! Also, what a potential danger! We need to be much in prayer for this undertaking.

A recent beginning was made by the Association of Christian businessmen. Our businessmen are seeking out God's way for commerce. The intent is not just to have fellowship, but to actively engage in searching out the truth of doing business Christianly, and as such to be a witness to Edmonton. We wish them well in this much-needed work.

The Association for the Mentally Handicapped, Rehoboth, recently bought a farm-like property outside of Stony Plain. They plan to train and instruct in a Christian environment some of our handicapped people. One can only admire such dedication. Our involvement in the Pastoral Institute of Edmonton continues, but likely will need re-evaluation during this time. Perhaps a realignment is necessary here too.

Christian involvement in Education, Labour, Politics and Farming is steadily growing in Edmonton. The next half decade will likely see these efforts prosper. Our involvement in Missions also continues via the Chaplaincy and local evangelism. What a responsible time for the believer to be alive and part of God's work in this city and province. We can only give him the glory!

Emmanuel Reformed Church history

When the Reformed Church began to work in Oxford County, the first center was at Burford. At that time Mr. C.M. Eelman was the leader, and 64 names were on the list, including both members, adherents, children and persons contacted.

It soon became necessary to have another center in the city of Woodstock. Rev. Clarence H. Schipper became a Missionary Pastor sent by the Board of Domestic Missions of the R.C.A. He began to preach in a Hall of the New St. Paul's Anglican Church on Dundas Street, and later on, a tiny group of people worshipped together in a Hall on Finkle Street.

On Saturday, May 7th, 1953, the Emmanuel Reformed Church of Woodstock was officially organized by the Classis of Passaic, but in 1962, we joined the new Classis of Ontario. The first consistory was composed of Elders J. Heeg, T. Hoekema, J. Mensink, Deacons M. Dorat, M. Tichelaar and L. Donker.

Rev. Schipper Opmeer succeeded him. He was ordained and installed on July 12, 1960, and served here till June 1964. The present Pastor, Rev. Cor Bons was installed on November 4, 1964.

Shortly after the Organization, plans were made to build. A lot was purchased on Clarke St. for $1,090.50, and the first unit of the church was built in 1954. Total cost, including Lot and Furniture was $18,542.97;

On Easter Sunday, April 14, 1968, we dedicated the second unit of the church. Now the cost had been $16,750.00.

The third Unit was built a few years later, and the present new church was dedicated on Friday, March 14, 1975. Total cost was $69,784.60.

Since September 1955 English Services have been held. At the moment we have a Service in Dutch on Sundays at 9:30 a.m., and a regular Service in English at 11:00 a.m., with special Evening Services on Easter Sunday, Good Friday, Thanksgiving, New Year's Eve and the day of Prayer for Crops and Industry. "Serve the Lord with gladness". Mr. John Spriel Clerk

A movie you should not see

The last few weeks there has been quite a bit of advertising on TV for a movie that is playing in South Western Ontario, entitled The Late Great Planet Earth, based on a book under the same title by Hal Lindsey. Now most of the movies that are shown these days are not much good, to say the least. They are filled with sex and violence, and as such they are not building up God's people in holy, Christian living. So, it needs no argumentation that we should not go to see such filth.

But now here comes that movie The Late Great Planet Earth, and it is advertised as being based on Biblical facts, on what the Old Testament prophets are supposed to have said about the future of the world. There is the danger that some people will say: what's wrong with a movie like that? Let's go and see it."

If you would go and see it, I'm afraid that you would get all confused by it, even as many of our people got confused and mixed up by the book when that first came out. The book is a bad book, and if the movie is a faithful rendering of the book — and there is no reason why it should not be — then the movie is also a bad movie. Therefore I counsel you not to be swept off your feet; don't be taken in by all the publicity; don't go and see it!

I'll tell you why you should not see it, and why it is a bad book and movie. It almost completely obscures from view our wonderful Lord Jesus Christ, our King who has called us into His service here and now, who demands obedience for His kingship. He is the centre of all of history, and only in relation to Him can we see who and what we are, what our place is in history, and where we and this world are going.

PASTORAL PONDERING

Lindsey completely bypasses our task as Christians in the world today, and in so doing he completely distorts the biblical view of the kingdom, the central thrust of the Scriptures which tell us about the renewal of all things in Christ.

Rev. A. Kuyvenhoven in an article in The Banner of March 17, 1972, sums it all up when he says: "This book is bad because it changes the whole focus of the Bible. God, who spoke in the Old Testament to the fathers by prophets and seers and who has in these last days spoken to us in His Son, is not allowed to say anything to us through the Son. The appearance of Jesus Christ in the flesh serves no other purpose, in this book, than to prove that the prophets are reliable foretellers of the future.

The author, who prides himself on being a literalist, does not literally believe that all authority has now been given to Christ and that Jesus is Lord today. If he believes this most ancient Christian confession, it has no influence whatever on his Bible reading. It is probably not intentional, yet oddly consistent with his narrow outlook, that the writer closes his book with an exhortation for the readers to reach (not the world but) "our family, our friends and our acquaintances with the gospel" (p. 188). "Getting saved is a matter of getting off before the ship sinks."

It is clear, then, that this is a truncated gospel. Besides, Lindsey presents us in this book with bad exegesis and bad interpretation. And that makes his book a bad book. And can then the movie be any better? For that reason: Forget it; don't go and see it!

Good and urgent news from Central America

by Jack Quartel

Rev. Quartel is pastor of the Ottawa [Calvin] Christian Reformed Church.

We recently visited Mexico. Not as tourists, we felt, because we visited very few places where the tourists usually go. We met the people, deep in the interior. As far as I know that is only possible when you are part of a tour, organized by the World (Canadian) Home Bible League.

Rev. C. Schemper, former missionary to Mexico, now Latin American director for the World Home Bible League, was our director. To us he seemed omniscient and everywhere present. There were a thousand details to attend to but absolutely nothing went wrong.

Now we wish that everyone could go. We did see a few tourist sights. But those are almost forgotten. What stands out in our memory and what we talk about is what no tourist ever sees; the people we met, the missionaries and their work. It touched us and changed us. Everyone of us felt that it was worth every penny and more. And though the tour lasted only 9 days, traveling included, there were so many impressions and experiences that this was more than enough. Let me tell you about some of the people we will long remember.

Francisco

Francisco is a young pastor of a young struggling church on the outskirts of Cuernavaca. This city is famous all over the world, because its climate is eternal Spring. And the flowers on the trees and in the gardens are gorgeous. It attracts many famous and rich people from all over the world. We drove right past all that wealth to a section of the poor among the poor. That is where the church was. The street was so broken up that the bus could not make it all the way. We had to walk a distance.

Francisco must work at least part time to provide for his family, because his congregation cannot support him. The pastor, like all of his congregation, is a recent convert.

It was with Francisco and his congregation that we had a service on Sunday morning. It was not at all what we are used to. We shared in English and Spanish, while Rev. Schemper translated for us. Francisco shared with us a dream. He would very much like to begin a new mission among people even needier than his own. But there was no way for him to get the necessary money, about 12,000 pesos or $600. So we had an offering for his church among the 46 of us. The total of the offering was $675 or 13,000 pesos. That was something to be thankful for. But also something to think about. What Francisco could not hope to save for a long time, if ever, we whipped out of our pockets in five minutes, and we never even felt the difference.

CRWRC

Loren Buursma represents the relief work of the Christian Reformed Church in Tlacolula in the state of Oaxaca. He shares with the missionaries what they call "The Institute". Part of that building is used by Loren to teach the farmers how to raise pigs, rabbits and chickens. He travels and helps farmers to fight diseases. Of course he not only must show them that his methods are superior, but he also comes in the name of Jesus Christ. He is always on trial. It is important for him to succeed, never to fail. Therefore prayer is an important part of his work. Before he will castrate a goat for instance he will ask a farmer first to kneel with him in prayer.

Loren took us to Carlos, who manages the experimental farm, a demonstration to farmers around. Carlos became a christian no more than a year ago. We only needed to ask him what Jesus meant for him, to release a flood of words in Spanish, a glowing testimony to his Lord.

Loren took us to Pedro, the honey maker. Also a christian for only a year. We asked him the same question. And he quietly told us how afraid he had been to die. But now that he was a christian that fear was gone.

Loren took us to Juan Baptiste, the baker. He had prepared a sumptuous meal for us. That was quite an honour and a great expense for him. The meal, however, did not at all smell like mother's cooking. Our stomachs did not take to it too kindly. But how could you refuse. Their eyes were on us, and we had to smile as we ate. The Lord blessed us and nothing went wrong. We saw him bake in his mudbrick dome. Newly improved with a gas burner, with CRWRC help. Juan insisted on baking a cake for each of us.

While that was in the oven we went to the potter and saw him miraculously form pots in a matter of two minutes out of a lump of clay. He offered us all the pots we wanted for a peso (5 cents) a piece. We helped ourselves to some souvenirs, and naturally gave him a bit more.

That was a full day, and we were glad to get to our hotel to sort it all out.

World missions

Dr. Hans Weerstra and Nick Kroeze are the missionaries, and they work closely with Loren. It was marvelous to see these men together, representing two boards, in such harmony, one supplementing the other. The missionaries share one half of the institute. And when farmers come for training, they also go for bible study.

A part of the institute is a home made studio. That is where they record scripture on players. These players are delivered to people who cannot read. This way they can hear the Bible. It warmed our heart to hear and feel the enthusiasm of the missionaries. The hopes and expectations they have. They are certain that the Lord is about to do great things for the country of Mexico.

MAF

Missionary Aviation Fellowship is a special kind of outreach, that plays a significant role in today's missionary world. These little planes (they seat only 3 or 4 passengers) with their very capable pilots fly missionaries everywhere at cost price. They bring a missionary to his village in 2 hours, which he otherwise could only reach in two days along difficult mountain trails.

Or vice versa, he may be able to fly out a sick missionary to a doctor or hospital in a matter of hours where otherwise there was no way of getting help. There is no estimating what these heroes of the skies have meant for mission work. We flew in one of these small, one engine planes. You fly through the mountains, not over them. When you look down you see every little village, all the trails going along the ridges. At one time we looked to our left, and there right next to us was a bus, parked along a road high up in the mountains. Our flight was unforgettable.

Wycliffe

Our pilot flew us deep into the steaming jungle, to a village with no road leading into it. It only had a short, narrow airstrip. It was the village of translator Bob Mugele. When we left the plane we were met by a gulf of streaming jungle heat. To reach the village we had to walk a kilometer over a couple of ridges. The trail was barely a foot wide. Slippery with water and muddy in many places. Coffee trees lined it on either side. A tangerine tree marked the start. It was not easy going in the suffocating heat, some of us could barely make it. But we kept remembering that all supplies flown in, such as canned food and books and other materials had to be carried in on the back of the missionary over this trail.

Bob's house was in no way different from the other houses. It consisted of two rooms, with mud floors and a grass roof. Very few conveniences. The translator does nothing but that: translate, teach the people to read and answer any questions they may have. Upon reading the Scriptures they themselves decided to begin a church, to elect officebearers. They do the preaching. The translator and his family sit in church. These people are not very rich. When crops have failed they are reduced to one meal a day. Yet they insist on supporting their translator, for that is what the Bible tells them.

We strolled through the village. Stopped at the river where people are baptized. There was not much for tourist eyes to be seen. But there was ever so much for the eyes of brothers and sisters in the faith. It was the most moving experience of our trip. It was impossible to speak with them. They did not even understand Spanish. But somehow we did understand one another. A finger pointing upwards to the place where we will meet again then without a language barrier said more than many a sermon.

We were in a way glad to leave the uncomfortable heart of the village. But we did not leave without a deep sense of gratitude for what God is doing through humble servants. We thought of people who sometimes complain of lack of social life in our towns and villages. We could not help but think of what there was for this missionary family. Yet they would be indignant if we even mentioned it to them. For they find satisfaction in the love and fellowship of simple Indian christians. Though, of course they must get out from time to time. They fly out at least once every half year.

Gerry

In the town of Mitla is a translation center. There are a number of cubicles there to which translators can come with their helpers to work on the tedious and painstaking job of translation, away from the village. We stopped at several of them to talk with the translators. At lunch time we went over to the apartments of the translators and each couple had lunch with a translator couple. My wife and I were invited to Jane and Don Nellis. With us at the table was Gerry, Gerardo in Spanish. He was Don's able, intelligent helper. A young man of 18.

Don told us his story. He had been born with a club foot. Since he had little feeling in the foot, it had become infected and finally gangrenous. It had to be amputated. In the hospital, that was a year ago, he found the Lord. Now he was serving the translator for nothing, though Don insisted on giving him some spending money. They were praying for money, at least $500 to buy an artificial foot.

The next morning at breakfast a lady that belonged to our group came to me with two cheques of $500 each, and asked me to spend them on the field. Immediately we thought of Gerry. It so happened that we were to go to Mitla again that morning. We asked to stop at the translation center and found Don and Gerry. We told them of the cheque we were bringing them. It was pure joy to see their utter astonishment. Both cried out that it was a miracle, they were near tears for gratitude. Right there and then we held hands and prayed together. Gerry first. It was in Spanish. We did not understand it. But we felt his deep gratitude, and we felt also how intimate this one year old christian was with his Lord.

Communism

Our missionaries told us how serious the situation is in Mexico today. Ninety percent of all education is in communist hands. Can you imagine, that almost all students, future leaders, graduating, are communist, atheists? The week we were there, 20 Chol Indian Christians were murdered by communists. Mexico must be won for Christ in the next few years, or it will be won for Marx. The missionaries are hopeful, but they need our prayers.

How heartwarming it was to hear that in contrast to Mexico many other countries are begging the World Home Bible League to provide New Testaments to place in the hands of each student. Not to have, not just to read, but to study. Just think of the challenge, of the possibilities. Guatemala has asked, Bolivia, Brazil, and other countries will follow. That will take millions and millions of testaments. And they want them, now. They need them, now. Tomorrow may be too late.

We met Mr. William Ackerman, director of the World Home Bible League. He had just returned from Brazil. The minister of education, a Jewess, had asked for a million New Testaments for students in the schools. They are being sent right now. So they planned a service for the dedication of this project. Well how many would we get in Canada, or the USA? In Brazil, 50,000 came to that service. I suppose that is an indication of the interest there is in the gospel in that country.

It is blessed to give

I already told you about the offering of $675 for Francisco. The cheque of $500 for Gerry. Believe it or not, but I had three more cheques of $500. They did not come from rich people. One had been given me by a lady in my congregation before I left, to spend as I saw fit. The other three, including the one for Gerry came from a widow who was also part of the tour. Two hundred dollars went to Missionary Aviation Fellowship for their great work. Three hundred dollars went to Dr. Weerstra to buy players for villages so they can hear the gospel. And $500 went to another struggling pastor who needed bibles for evangelism but had no money. Now he could receive a great supply. And another $500 went to pay for printing the translation of a New Testament, so they could be placed in the hands of the people.

We left something of our heart in Mexico. We learned what mission work really is, not only in Mexico, but all over the world. We will never be able to forget this. We will never be the same again.

These experiences brought us as group very close together. It was a marvelous, spiritual experience.

The last day we were in Oaxaca, we invited all the missionaries we had contacted. Each couple sponsored a missionary couple and took them for dinner. What a great time we had talking to these people. Many of us would like to go back there. To see, to share, to help, to rejoice, to pray, to fight right along with our frontier men and women.

We certainly wish all of you could share this too. You can if you wish. The World (Canadian) Home Bible League is planning to sponsor another tour in the Spring. If you wish to be part of it, let us hear from you.

PASTORAL COUNSELLING

In the first epistle of John we read, "God is Love." This is probably the most brief definition of the nature of God which one can find anywhere. Without a doubt it is the center of the Christian faith. We think in terms of God's love for us and our love for God. He loved us first but the Christian religion always implies the fact of being loved and to love. When we think about the love of God we naturally call to mind a number of passages of scripture such as "God so loved the world," or a song "Love Divine, All Love Excelling," or "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go." But can we really believe this? Without a doubt the greatest obstacle standing in the way of our believing in a loving God is the fact of human suffering.

We hear almost everyday of tragedies and accidents. A plane goes down and over 500 people are burned to a crisp. We see automobile accidents almost every day on our highways. We read of deaths that take place and lives that are snuffed out; somebody's wife or sister, father or son. It's always tragedy! I'm sure that within the heart of a person there comes the question, "Can this be the world in which a God of love rules?" "How can a God of love permit these things?" So often when you talk with people, particularly in moments of tragedy, sorrow, or pain, there's the question, "Is this an expression of the love of God?"

"Why does a loving God permit this?" There are many people in the world who answer this question rather simply. They turn it around and they say, "If there is a God of love, these things wouldn't happen," and as a result they use it as a convenient alibi for unbelief. They simply say, "Things happen by chance," but a God of love, the consequences. I think this is true of many, many people who when they go through suffering they have to come to the conclusion it's because of the fact that we have not observed the laws of God, of health, traffic laws, or moral laws which God has placed within us. This is true of individuals but this is also true of our generation.

Love and Suffering

A great deal of the mental and emotional illness you see in the lives of people could well have been prevented if parents had been more alert when their children were young, or if children didn't have to go through some of the tragedies and sufferings that you see in so many homes today. We must not think in terms only of God as being a complacent grandfather who just closes his eyes to whatever men do and we say, "well, let bygones be bygones and after all it's God's business to forgive." Too many people think of God that way. We push a button and we expect God to run and help us and to keep us from difficulty and to overcome life's tragedies. This idea of God as a servant of ours or somebody that we can call on like one of our machines that we use is not the God that we think of. He's a God of love.

But now if God is a loving God why then does He allow these things to happen? I think there are answers to this question even though you cannot generalize. Each one must in his own heart find an answer as to why God sends difficulties and trials and suffering into his life. All of us who have children know that these children will never grow up into mature persons unless we give them a chance to make choices, to make decisions. Now, we know they may often make the wrong choice or the wrong decision, but we take that risk because we want them to grow up. That's God's way of working.

God doesn't push us around like men on a chess board, but He has given us minds to think and hearts to feel. He gives us the ability to make choices and He allows us to make choices — real choices. You see this in people like Moses, Florence Nightingale, Albert Schweitzer, or the life of Christ or the apostles, for example. But because of this power of choice you also see a Judas or a Jezebel, a Hitler, or a Mussolini. That's the price that we pay for freedom, the freedom that God gives us in His love. I'm sure that we wouldn't like to be the kind of person who had no choices at all in life. We want to make choices, but we often make the wrong ones.

But then there's another answer, I believe, when we look at all of these things. What is our highest destiny here on earth? What is our highest goal of living? Is it just to live comfortably and complacently and easy? Some people find that there is no higher purpose in life than just to live comfortably here. Then you cannot understand the tragedy of suffering if that is your viewpoint. No, when God controls and He controls it well, He so leads and so guides that there are also sufferings and tragedies in life. When you say, "How can a loving God do this to me?" the answer always comes back, "You're asking the wrong question. The question is this, 'Do I really believe in a loving God. Can I really take hold of His love, because if I do then somehow or other through all of the mist of tragedy, I will still see His love.'"

This is the beauty of God's relationship with His people. When we reach that point in life when we face life's tragedies, we can still look up and say, "I know that God is love, my God loves me." Then we're not going to ask, "Why?" but we are going to say, "What's His goal, what's His purpose?" and we fall in line with his purpose.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Life is not all roses. There are also thorns that we pluck. It is wonderful that life is that way because this enables us to grow and to become stronger and more vibrant persons. Through life's pains and sufferings we learn to see His love in a greater and more wonderful way.

no, they can't accept this. But if you believe in a God of love or if you believe in God at all, one who has absolute power, you have to come to the conclusion that God is love and this love is revealed also through the tragedies of life.

There are insights in our Christian faith which come like arrows in the dark, little glimpses of light that the Bible gives us. Ultimately the Bible doesn't satisfy our curiosity, but it does give certain answers. One of this is that much of the evil and suffering that falls into the lives of men is of their own making. It's not God's doing, it's their own doing. There are those who suffer because of the sins that they have committed. There are those who recklessly throw themselves into danger. The plain fact is that if you stand on a lofty perch and you jump down, you're going to break your neck. Then it's not the fact that you can say, "How can a loving God allow this," the laws of gravity are there. We have to learn that this whole thing is something which is consistent with God's law and consistent with God's love. For God has written moral laws into the universe and mankind has had opportunity to learn them and to act according to them.

When we break these laws we're going to suffer

Getuigen van Christus

Ieder Christen behoort een zendeling te zijn. De Heer Jezus zei: Gelijk Gij, Vader, Mij in de wereld gezonden hebt, heb Ik ook hen in de wereld gezonden. We zijn dus gezonden. Wij, dat zijn degenen voor wie de Heer Jezus bidt: "Heilige Vader, Ik bid voor hen die Gij Mij gegeven hebt, omdat zij de Uwen zijn." Nu, u kunt dat betrekken op de twaalf discipelen. De Heiland zegt ook: "geen uit hen is ten verdere gegaan dan de zoon des verderfs, opdat de Schrift vervuld worde." Maar later zegt de Heiland: "En niet voor dezen slechts vraag Ik, maar ook voor hen, die door hun woord in Mij geloven ... opdat de wereld gelove dat Gij Mij gezonden hebt." Zo wordt ieder gelovige een gezondene. En het vraagteken achter de vraag: elk Christen een zendeling? moet beslist in een uitroep worden veranderd.

De Heiland spreekt ook over zijn discipelen als "getuigen". Gij zult Mijn getuigen zijn. Eerst wil ik opmerken dat er kracht en moed voor nodig is om getuige van Christus te zijn. Hoe kunnen die eerste discipelen getuigen zijn van Christus? Ze waren zo zwak geweest. Ze hadden de Heiland allen in de steek gelaten. Ze hadden gemerkt dat een uit hen Jezus verraden had, en toen de Heiland daarop zinspeelde, vroegen ze verbijsterd: ben ik het Heer? Een van hen had Hem verloochend, en wat een verdriet had hij gehad. Ze waren zo zwak geweest, en zo ontrouw. Hoe zouden ze ooit de taak kunnen volbrengen om getuigen van Christus te zijn. De Heer Jezus wist dat wel, en daarom zegt Hij: "Gij zult kracht ontvangen van de Heilige Geest. Hij zal op u komen, en gij zult getuigen van Mij zijn, te Jeruzalem, in geheel Judea en Samaria en tot het einde der aarde."

Heel vaak wordt 'getuigen' gebruikt in het kerkelijk, of liever, christelijk spraakgebruik als een spreken van een gelovige over de geestelijke ervaring die hij of zij heeft ondervonden. En er zijn ook in onze tijd telkens gelovigen die een 'testimony', een getuigenis geven. Zij vertellen dan wat God hen deed ondervinden. En als dit getuigenis, dit testimony in nederigheid wordt gebracht zal ieder christen zich daarover verheugen. God laat ons nl. heel wat ondervinden als we geloven in de volkomen verzoening van onze zonden, die we als een wedergeborene van God uit genade ontvangen. Maar, ... dat soort getuigen wordt niet bedoeld als de Heer Jezus tot Zijn discipelen zegt: Gij zult Mijn getuigen zijn. Grosheide zegt er van: "Het hier bedoelde getuigen, dat we in het eerste deel van Handelingen meer aantreffen, is volkomen objectief bedoeld. Christus had de apostelen uitgekozen en onderricht, de Heilige Geest geeft hun kracht. Zo kunnen zij spreken, prediken wat zij gehoord en gezien hebben, getuigen, zoals een getuige het voor de rechtbank doet." De Heer Jezus zegt dan ook nog waar dat getuigenis moet klinken. Als de discipelen praten over de opgevallen plaats door de dood van Judas, dan zoeken ze naar een opvolger onder degenen "die één met ons getuige is geworden van de opstanding van Christus." Dat laatste, die opstanding, staat vooral in het middelpunt. De opstanding is de victorie van Jezus Christus. En daar moet het in het getuigen vooral over gaan.

U hebt misschien wel eens een rechtszitting bijgewoond. Misschien bent u wel eens opgeroepen als getuige. U weet dat u dan op een gegeven moment door de rechter wordt gevraagd om uw plaats in te nemen in de "witnessbox", de getuigenbank. U zult dan een eed moeten afleggen, met uw hand op de bijbel, dat u echt de waarheid zult vertellen, "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth". En dan wordt u van alles gevraagd, en u moet op die vragen rechtstreeks antwoorden. U mag niet een heel verhaal afsteken. U bent in de getuigenbank, u mag, als u wilt, gaan staan, en dan moet u niets anders zeggen dan de waarheid. En hoe korter u het formuleert hoe beter. Als u dat wel eens bij de hand hebt gehad dan weet u dat het nog niet zo gemakkelijk is om echt "te getuigen". Als u de waarheid gezegd hebt mag u weer gaan zitten, op uw eigen plaats.

Zoiets is nu ook het getuigen dat de Heer Jezus vraagt van Zijn discipelen. Opstaan en wat zeggen over de Heer Jezus! En dan is er een wereld van gedachten. Je weet soms haast niet waar je mee beginnen moet. De Heiland zegt: Het zal u in dat uur gegeven worden! Er werd op de Amsterdamse tram erg gevloekt. Een oud vrouwtje stond midden tussen de vloekende mannen. Ineens zei ze met stemverheffing: Geloofd zij Jezus Christus! Tot het eindpunt van de tramroute was er niemand meer die een mond opendeed. Dat was "getuigen", iets groots van de Heer Jezus zeggen.

door Carl D. Tuyl

•De resultaten van het meest recente publiek opinie onderzoek aangaande voorkeur voor politieke partijen in Canada werden met veel fanfare in de pers bekend gemaakt. De Conservatieve partij verkreeg in dit onderzoek een even groot aantal stemmen als de Liberalen. Er waren onmiddellijk speculaties omtrent een uitstel van eventuele verkiezingen.

•Canada plaatste een order van 67 miljoen dollar voor de bouw van communicatie satellieten bij Hughes Co. in California.

•De verdwijning tussen Carter en Menachem Begin blijft voort duren. Begin bezocht Washington met het doel de voorgestelde verkoop van F.15 straaljagers aan Saudi-Arabie te verhinderen. Deze verkoop, zo redeneert Begin, zou de nationale veiligheid van Israël ten eerste bedreigen. Een Washington korrespondent spekuleerde dat Carter heimelijk wenst dat het Congres geen goedkeuring voor de verkoop zal geven. Frankrijk vist alreeds in deze troebele wateren met een aanbod aan Saudi-Arabie voor de verkoop van haar Mirage straaljagers. Tijdens zijn bezoek aan Amerika sprak Begin tot de Joodse gemeenschap in Chicago. In zijn toespraak zei de Israëlische premier dat zijn regering nooit de vestiging van een Palestijnse vrijstaat ten Westen van de Jordaan zou dulden.

•In Rome demonstreerden duizenden arbeiders tegen eventuele onderhandelingen met de Rode Brigade. De gijzeling van Aldo Moro duurt nu al bijna twee maanden.

De Socialistische Partij heeft voorgesteld om tenminste een aantal terroristen uit de gevangenis te ontslaan in ruil voor Moro's vrijheid. De Christelijk Democratiese Partij wil eerst de ontheffing van Moro's gijzeling zien. De familie van Moro beschuldigt de regering van een onverzoonlijk standpunt hetgeen in hun opinie Moro's leven onnodig in gevaar brengt.

•Het is nu duidelijk dat de revolutie in Afghanistan geleid werd door kommunistiese groeperingen. Men schat het aantal slachtoffers van deze revolutie op tenminste 10.000.

•Er waren vuurgevechten tussen de troepen van de Verenigde Naties en Arabiese guerrilla strijders in Libanon. Tenminste vier militairen van de V.N. sneuvelden.

•In West Virginia begaven de stijgers van een toren in aanbouw het. In deze ramp verloren 51 personen het leven. Totdat de oorzaak van dit gebeuren is bepaald heeft men het werk aan 3 dergelijke projecten gestaakt.

•Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev bezocht West Duitsland. Alhoewel het doel van zijn bezoek is de versterking van economiese betrekking met West Duitsland, vermeldt de pers meer aangaande de blijkbaar kommervolle gezondheid van de Russiese president.

•Japan en Amerika onderhandelen weer over de import en export tussen deze twee landen. Japan importeert meer naar Amerika dan Amerika exporteert naar Japan. Het verschil bedraagt 14 biljoen dollars. De onderhandelingen hebben als doel dit verschil te verkleinen.

•In Quebec hoeft de automobilist maar één nummerplaat te hebben, de besparing van deze zuinigheidsmaatregel bedraagt een miljoen dollar.

de levens geschiedenis van Pieter Vermeulen door G  Verhoog

Gemeente Velsen  

"Zou hier een vishandel kunnen ontstaan?" vraagt Mietje verbaasd, "nee, dat kan ik niet geloven, dat zal Amsterdam nooit toestaan. De stad is al zo bang, dat Kennemerland de handel gaat beheersen, nee, dat kan ik nauwelijks geloven."

Het zijn prettige gesprekken op de lange wandeling, die de weg korten. Het oude kerkgebouw in Bloemendaal, waar de naam van De Genestet nog in het kleurige glasraam prijkt, is een punt in het leven van de Vermeulens geworden, dat ze niet graag willen missen. Hier wordt een kerkdienst gegeven en genoten door samenzang, door een open blik in de Bijbel, door een tekstuitleg, die de mens opnieuw gelukkig maakt en versterkt omdat ze weten: emmanuel: God met ons. Hoe moeilijk het leven kan zijn: aan Gods veilige hand voortgaan is hun enige wens en hoe kan het dan verkeerd gaan?

12 De winter valt dit jaar vroeg in: een schrale oostenwind strijkt over de vlakke Breesaap en doet de handen van de grondwerkers verstijven. Op de Heide flintert rook uit de gaten in het dak van de keten en hollen; er is een zorg bijgekomen, want er moet turf zijn en hout om te stoken. Alfred Franklin staat in zijn winkel vol kruidenierswaren en alles, wat men in deze streek nodig zou kunnen hebben. Zijn voornaamste klan-ten zijn de Engelsen, want zij kunnen elkaar verstaan; bovendien zijn de landgenoten in betere jobs werkzaam en Alfred heeft liever met hen te doen dan met de ruwe arbeidersgarde. Zijn winkel staat ten noorden van de kanaalgraverij, hij heeft geen spijt Engeland verlaten te hebben voor een tiental jaren, want hier verdient hij goed.

Soms komt meester Vermeulen in zijn winkel met de juffrouw; hij vindt haar een "fine lady" en begrijpt niet, hoe de meester deze voorname vrouw temidden van het afval der maatschappij wil laten leven. Zijn winkel is een praathuis geworden en Alfred heeft daartegen geen bezwaar, want praters worden vaak kopers, als je het handig aanlegt.

Natuurlijk vinden veel polderjongens hun weg naar de winkel: bij hier en gunder, zo'n vreemde eend in de bijt en zij zullen niet naar binnen gaan? Peren van een mud kan die krentenweger krijgen. Voorts spreken ze hun moers taal en als Alfred hen niet kan verstaan, krast hij maar op naar zijn eigen land. Alfred is echter plenter genoeg en spreekt behoorlijk Nederlands en bovendien verstaat hij de aparte taal van de Heide.

"'k Het geen monnie," zegt de Natte op een Zaterdagavond, de winkel binnenstappend en stevig pruimend, "maar ik mot wel tabak hebbe."

"Heb je nu alle money al bij de kroegbaas gebracht?" vraagt Alfred geamuseerd, "well, daar kan de schoorsteen bij jou en bij mij niet van roken en jij kunt zelf ook niet roken."

De Natte loert met een duistere blik naar de winkelier; moet je die gladgeschoren Engelse aap es zien; offie thuis is. Hij buigt zich over de toonbank heen. "Hoor es fader, of hoe dat zel heten in jullie apetaal, de baas het weer es geen cente uitbetaald, dat doetie Maandag zegtie en ik zeg tegen hem, ik zeg: as je dat nou nog es flikt, dan gooiien we 't werk neer en graaf jij zelf je kanaal maar en nou mot ik tabak hebbe, anders sla ik je hele negosie an diggele."

Alfred ziet zijn klant wel hiervoor aan; vlug bedenkt hij wat te doen. Het is waar en de reden begrijpt hij niet, maar het zal om de grootste winst gaan: de arbeiders worden niet altijd op tijd uitbetaald en er wordt hevig beknipteld op de lonen. Maar als hij gaat borgen en de winter valt in met ijs, als alles stil komt te liggen, kan hij ook zijn rekeningen niet betalen met het borgen. Waarom betaalt de maatschappij alleen als er gewerkt wordt? Kunnen de arbeiders er iets aan doen dat het gaat vriezen? Het zijn toch geen winterslaapdieren, die tijdens de kou in slaap vallen en met het lentezonnetje wakker worden met een stevige honger?

De deur gaat open, Malle Eipie glipt binnen, gevolgd door Toon de Lijs. De

Natte richt zich op, ziet hen met brede lach aan. "Ook geen cente gehad, he, en nou wil deze roetetoeter geen tabak geve, wat zalle we doen?"

"Op z'n bek slaan," raadt Malle Eipie.

Toon de Lijs heeft zelf al een greep gedaan in de zakjes tabak, deelt uit.

Haastig kiest Alfred de wijste partij en schrijft in zijn pofboek op, wat de klanten meenemen. In hem dringt de gedachte los, dat hij naar dit geld zal kunnen fluiten en als de winter streng wordt...Wacht: een idee. Die meester Vermeulen zit midden in die troep, als het te bar wordt met poffen zal hij die meester aan z'n jaspanden trekken.

"Malle Eipie het wel cente," zeurt Toon de Lijs, "as jij nou es voor ons betaalt, he?"

"Ik cente?" stuift Malle Eipie op, "hoe zal ik an cente komme?"

Toon de Lijs haalt hoorbaar snuivend zijn neus op; dan grinnikt hij: "Heb jouw Mooie Nel geen klandizie meer?" Voor Malle Eipie kan antwoorden naar zijn eigen gevoelens, draait de deur weer open: de Paardekop stapt binnen, loopt recht op Alfred aan. "Een pond suiker."

"Voor de jenever," grinnikt Toon de Lijs weer, wat de Paardekop doet opmerken: "Ik weet niet of je 't door het met je glaze oog, maar dat benne mijn zaken."

Als u jonge mensen aanneemt voor een zomerbaan, dan zal Ontario u helpen bij het betalen van hun salarissen

Zo werkt het programma.

Als u een zaak of boerderij beheert en nieuwe banen creert tussen 1 mei en 21 oktober 1978, zal Ontario's Youth Employment Program u een toeslag geven van $1.25 per uur [tot een maximum van $50.00 per week] op het loon van elke in aanmerking komende jeugdige die u aanneemt voor die job.

Werkgevers: Iedereen die een bedrijf had of een boerderij beheerde in Ontario voor tenminste 1 jaar voorafgaande aan 1 mei, kan toelagen ontvangen voor 6 nieuwe betrekkingen per bedrijf voor in aanmerking komende werknemers.

Werknemers: Werknemers moeten tenminste 15 jaar zijn, maar nog geen 25, op 1 mei 1978. Ze mogen geen rechtstreekse familie zijn van de werkgever en moeten in Ontario wonen en gerechtigd zijn daar te werken.

De duur: Het programma is van kracht gedurende 25 weken, van 1 mei tot 21 oktober 1978. De werkgever is niet verplicht iemand voor de volle 25 weken aan te nemen.

Arbeidstermijn: Om in aanmerking te komen, moet de gecreerde baan een aanvulling zijn op de geregelde en seizoenwerkzaamheden gedurende deze periode. Men moet minimaal 25 uur per week werk verschaffen onder toezicht voor tenminste 6 weken.

Toeslag: Erkende werkgevers zullen een toelage ontvangen van $1.25 per uur tot een maximum van $50.00 per week (40 uren werkweek) voor iedere jeugdige die voor dit programma wordt aangenomen.

Opmerking: De fondsen voor deze toelage zijn beperkt. Als u een jeugdige gedurende deze periode wilt aannemen, dien dan zo spoedig mogelijk een aanvraag in. Om iemand aan te nemen voor dit programma moet u eerst een goedkeuring ontvangen van het Ministerie van Financien. Na 4 september kunnen geen aanvragen meer in overweging worden genomen.

Pinksterfeest : Het einde van de spraakverwarring

Genesis 11:1 "De gehele aarde nu was één van taal en één van spraak."

Genesis 11:4 "...laten wij ons een stad bouwen met een toren, waarvan de top tot de hemel reikt, en laten wij ons een naam maken..."

Genesis 11:9 "Daarom noemt men haar Babel — wirwar — omdat de Here daar de taal der gehele aarde verward heeft en de Here hen vandaar over de gehele aarde verstrooid heeft."

Hand. 2:4 "Nu waren er Joden te Jeruzalem woonachtig, vrome mannen uit alle volken onder de hemel..."

Hand. 2:9-11 "Parthen, Meden, Elamieten, inwoners van Mesopotamië, Judea en Capadocië, Pontus en Asia, Phrygië en Pamphylië, Egypte en de streken van Libye bij Cyrene, en hier verblijvende Romeinen, zowel Joden als Jodengenoten, Cretenzers en Arabieren, wij horen hen in onze eigen taal van de grote daden Gods spreken."

door J. Faber, overgenomen uit het Gereformeerd weekblad 17 mei 1977.

Het startpunt van deze meditatie is de verwondering over een bepaalde zinswending bij Lucas. De rest is een poging om die woorden in de bijbelse verbanden te verstaan.

Lucas schrijft, in het geweldige Pinksterbericht van Handelingen 2, over de mensen die rond de met de Heilige Geest vervulde gemeente te hoop lopen. Het zijn Joden uit alle volken onder de hemel. Overdreven? Men kan de overdrijving afzwakken op allerlei manieren. Men kan haar ook laten staan en, getroffen door het vreemde, overwegen of Lucas ons hierin niet iets zeer bepaalds te zeggen heeft. Het staat er dan toch maar! "... Uit alle volken onder de hemel". Zij horen in de veelheid van de talen allen hetzelfde, omdat de Geest-gevulde getuigen allen hetzelfde spreken. Zij horen de grote daden Gods! De magnalia Dei! Wordt hier niet principieel het einde van de spraakverwarring afgekondigd?

Spraakverwarring is niet, dat de mensen verschillende talen spreken, maar dat zij niet meer in staat zijn hetzelfde te zeggen. Wat ons in Genesis 11 wordt gezegd is niet de verklaring van Frans, Duits en Engels. Spraakverwarring wordt niet met Kramers' woordenboeken verholpen.

Spraakverwarring is een oordeel van God, waardoor de taal van de hele aarde verward is: zodat zelfs mensen die allen Nederlands spreken, elkaar niet meer verstaan.

In Genesis 11:1-9 wordt samengevat, wat over de volkeren op aarde na de grote vloed te zeggen valt. Het is een mensheid in de verstrooiing geworden (diaspora), met een verwarde taal.

Er ligt een grote weemoed over deze tekst. Want het gaat hier over "de verwekkingen van de zonen van Noach" (Gen. 10:32). Dit is een mensenvolk, wiens leven door de grote vloed heen is bewaard. Zij mogen leven op aarde onder de hemel, na het goddelijk gericht! Maar zij begrijpen niet, wat het wil zeggen, te mogen leven in de ruimte van Gods geduld, onder een boog van trouw.

Hoe kon het zover komen? Ze hebben in het vlakke Tweestromenland een stad gebouwd, en er moest een toren komen tot aan de hemel. Hier is de eerste steen gelegd van het geestelijke rijk van Babel, in de profeten tot aan de Openbaring toe de grote tegenstad van Jeruzalem. Men zegt, dat het trots was. Maar het begon niet met trots: het was ruimtevrees. Zij hadden een opdracht en een zegen meegekregen. Zij mochten zich verspreiden over een aarde, waar de zon van Gods geduld de laatste tranen van de zondvloed droogde. Zij hoefden elkaar niet kwijt te raken op de wijde wereld. Er hoefde geen verwijdering te komen. Ze waren één van taal en één van spraak. Ze zouden overal op de aarde, die des Heren is, de Naam mogen aanroepen.

Maar zij vreesden, dat zij dan tenslotte nergens meer zouden zijn. Vandaar die stad. Vandaar die toren. "De Naam des Heren is een sterke toren; de rechtvaardige ijlt daarheen en is onaantastbaar" (Spreuken 18:10). Maar zij zeiden: laten wij ons een naam maken.

Uit deze contreien is Abraham geroepen. Genesis 12 volgt niet voor niets op Genesis 11. Wat voor taal is dit geweest dat hij het hoorde en in beweging kwam! Er gaat een mens op weg naar een andere stad, waarvan God de ontwerper en bouwmeester is (Hebr. 11:10). Deze mens en de zijnen zeggen niet: laten wij ons een naam maken. Zij horen, dat God Abrahams naam groot zal maken. Zij hoeven geen toren te bouwen, want de Naam des Heren is een sterke toren, en wie daarheen vlucht, is onaantastbaar.

Maar wat, als de Naam wordt misverstaan, als de geheimen vanzelfsprekend worden geacht? Dan komt er ook een oordeel over Abrahams geslacht. Dan moet Israël terug naar Babel. Dan begint ook voor dit volk de diaspora. "Jude sein heilst im 'Golus' (= in ballingschap) sein," schrijft Franz Rosenzweig. Uit grote verten begint de weg naar Sion. En in die verten kwam het grote lijden, de pogroms en de kampen, omdat de volkeren in de ogen van Abrahams kinderen de ruimte zagen, die hen radeeloos maakt. Groter nog dan de toren is hun angst, en daarom mogen er geen Joden zijn.

De taal van God — daarvan getuigen Wet en Profeten. De taal van God — dat is Jezus Christus. Het Evangelie leert ons, hoe Hij de verzoeking weerstond, zichzelf een naam te maken. In een wereld, waar niemand de engte van het Ego wil ruilen voor de ruimte van het Rijk, hoorde Hij de stem en ging naar de plaats die God Hem wees. Het Evangelie zegt, dat Hij daar gekruisigd is. Dat is het diepe raadsel van de geschiedenis: Hij is niet in Babel, maar in Jeruzalem gekruisigd.

Pinksteren is een taalwonder: het is de vertaling naar de mensen toe van Kerst, en Goede Vrijdag, en Pasen, en Hemelvaart. "De grote daden Gods," waarvan deze getuigen spreken, is het verhaal van Jezus Christus. Alle volken, ook Israël, zijn in de diaspora terecht gekomen. Maar Jezus heeft het oordeel van God in die verstrooiing in Zijn eigen hart gesloten. In de ruimte zonder God, in de verwarring zonder Naam, is Hij voor ons gestorven.

De mensen die deze Pinksterpreek hoorden, zegt Lucas, kwamen uit alle volken onder de hemel. Nee, dit staat er niet zo maar. Dit proclameert het einde van de spraakverwarring.

Als de grote daden Gods in Jezus Christus worden verkondigd, zullen wij — enkelingen en volken — weer hetzelfde zeggen, al scheiden ons talen en culturen. Wie weet, dat de ruimte om ons heen de ruimte van Gods liefde is, overwint de vrees om de voet te zetten op Gods Weg. En de Geest, zegt de apostel, komt onze zwakheid te hulp.

Hoe komt het dat christenen op concrete punten zo bitter van mening verschillen? De weg van de Heer gaat dwars door de knelpunten van onze tijd: wij kunnen dan niet meer alle kanten op met arbeid en inkomen, techniek en milieu, dood en leven. Het kan toch niet, dat christenen in kwesties waarin het Evangelie van het Koninkrijk bevrijdend concreet wordt het fundamenteel oneens zijn? Of heeft Lucas zich vergist, toen hij het Pinksterfeest met zoveel woorden het einde van de spraakverwarring noemde?

HET HOLLANDSE VLA-LIED

Denk aan de vla, die moet u nooit vergeten. Denk aan de vla; u moet toch heus wel weten dat een maaltijd zonder vla, zo licht en fris, een heel gemis zal zijn, dat is gewis. Geen toetje kent zo'n heerlijke verscheidenheid en vraagt zo weinig tijd Met roomijs of met yoghurt er in een smulpertij voor het hele gezin. Een gastvrouw die men altijd waardeert is een die graag op vla tracteert. Dus denk aan de vla, die heerlijke vla, Ja, denk aan de vla voortaan.

Eens terrorist, nu evangelist

Er woedt een oorlog in Afrika schrijft Broeder Andrew, auteur van "Gods Smugglers" in zijn nieuwe boek "Battle for Africa", een oorlog tussen God en de Satan veelal onder het mom van nationalisme en communisme.

Ndabezinhle Musa

In het nieuws hebben we gehoord over talrijke Afrikaanse landen, zoals Oeganda, Mozambique en Ethiopië, waar regeringen zijn overgegaan in linkse handen en waar christenen worden vervolgd. Maar er is ook het goede nieuws dat dagelijks honderden Christus vinden.

De geest is aan het werk in Afrika, ook in het leven van Ndabezinhle Musa, volgens "Kruistochten", een zendingstijdschrift, waarvan Anne Vander Bijl, alias Brother Andrew, redacteur is. Hier volgt een artikel dat hij schreef voor "Kruistochten".

"Mijn eerste naam, Ndabezinhle, betekent 'Goed Nieuws'. Maar ik moet zeggen, dat ik 'slecht nieuws' was voor veel mensen. Soms betekende deze naam zelfs de dood. Ik haatte de blanken, de Kerk, Jezus Christus. Ik haatte ook mijn vader, die een methodisten-predikant was.

Ik had maar één gedachte: het christendom uitroeien en daarvoor in de plaats een Utopia, een land van vrede, welvaart en geluk bouwen. Zo werd ik een toegewijd marxist. Men stuurde mij naar Tsjechoslowakije om een training te krijgen in het communistische atheïsme en om de kneepjes van het terrorisme te leren. Steeds dichterbij kwam ik bij mijn doel. En toen ik na vier jaar weer terugkwam in Rhodesië was mijn diepste wens, de blanken uit heel Afrika te gooien. Ik sloot mij aan bij een vakbond en vanzelfsprekend bij een vakbond die op de beste wijze stakingen op touw zette.

Maar toen ik bemerkte dat dit weinig hielp bij het ondermijnen van de economie, zocht ik naar andere middelen om mijn doel te bereiken. Ik begon jonge mannen te instrueren om Molotovcocktails te maken en deze naar de huizen te gooien van hen, die tegen onze zaak waren. Ook rekruteerde ik mensen van de universiteiten en colleges om een terroristische opleiding te volgen in andere landen. Relletjes in de stadscentra organiseren behoorde eveneens tot mijn werkzaamheden.

Als resultaat van dat alles werden vele onschuldigen vermoord en veel jonge kerels verspeelden hun kansen om een betere opleiding te volgen.

Op een avond in mei zouden we naar een christelijke bijeenkomst gaan om d.m.v. moord en doodslag een grote rel te organiseren. Ik zette mijn mannen te midden van de toehoorders. Zij waren klaar om op mijn signaal in actie te komen, maar ik wachtte nog op het meest geschikte moment. Ik zat daar en luisterde aandachtig, terwijl ik het gesprokene analyseerde en vergeleek met mijn marxistische ideologie.

De spreker was Dennis

Clark uit Engeland. Op een gegeven moment citeerde hij Openbaring 21:8. Het trof mij als een donderslag bij heldere hemel.

'Maar de lafhartigen, de ongelovigen, de verfoeilijken, de moordenaars, de hoereers, de tovenaars, de afgodendienaars, en alle leugenaars-hun deel is in de poel, die brandt van vuur en zwavel: dit is de tweede dood.'

Dit Bijbelvers raakte mij van mijn hoofd tot aan mijn voeten en liet niets van mij over. Ik bleef hierover doordenken tot de bijeenkomst was afgelopen. Nooit gaf ik mijn vrienden het afgesproken teken om in actie te komen. Zij waren zeer verward toen ik hen liet inrukken en ikzelf zo snel mogelijk naar huis ging. Daar pakte ik mijn Bijbel en sloeg de tekst uit Openbaring 21 op. Nadat ik de tekst enkele malen gelezen had, viel ik op mijn knieën en onder bittere tranen beledigde ik mijn zonden.

De volgende morgen kwamen mijn vrienden voor nieuwe orders, maar ik verontschuldigde mij gedurende twee dagen om voor hen te kunnen bidden.

In die tijd daagde de Heer mij uit om vastberaden te zijn en de waarheid te vertellen aan de mensen die ik zo lang had misleid. Ik ging van de ene kerk naar de andere en vroeg gelegenheid om van mijn nieuwe leven te getuigen. Zo zocht ik ook diverse mensen thuis op om vergeving te vragen voor wat ik hen had aangedaan. Voor de gemeenten beledigde ik mijn zonden.

Mijn vroegere vrienden waren niet langer verbaasd over mij, maar begonnen mij nu te haten. De communisten hebben een prijs op mijn hoofd gezet, maar ik sta onder de bescherming van Jezus Christus en ga openlijk rond.

Ik mag nu de Boodschap brengen op plaatsen waar anderen niet kunnen komen, waar de taal van marteling, moord, verkrachting, roof en verminking van onschuldige mensen heerst. In die gebieden bid ik met de bedroefden, treur ik met hen die treuren en lijd ik met hen die lijden, opdat ik hen mag brengen onder de reddende genade van onze Heer. Ik bid dat zij tot volledige overgave aan de wil en de leiding van Jezus Christus zullen komen. Hij is in hun trieste omstandigheden het enige antwoord."

Uw gezin is een zeer special deel van uw leven

Het gezin is onze meest belangrijke sociale instelling. Dat is de reden waarom Ontario's regering stappen blijft ondernemen om steun en hulp te verlenen aan het gezinsleven in de provincie. Dit houdt in wetgeving op de verbetering van het gezinsrecht en andere programma's, zoals: dagprogramma's onder toezicht, hulp aan huis voor bejaarden en gehandicapten, speciale toelagen voor ouders die de zorg hebben voor ernstig gehandicapte kinderen, en gemeenschappelijke woonruimte voor geestelijk gestoorde.

Deze programma's zijn een indicatie van de verplichting van uw regering in het ondersteunen van uw gezinsleven.

De gezondheid van onze gemeenschap hangt af van de gezondheid en veiligheid van uw gezin.

Term insurance, the true life insurance

"A Century ago, indeed even more recently than that, this country was mainly a rural, agricultural society of large, closely-knit, self-sufficient family groups. These groups were often able to take care of a man's widow and children in the event of his death. But in today's highly industrial, urban society, families are smaller units, moving freely from one region to another, often facing great financial hardship in the case of a breadwinner's death. In these modern circumstances many families have turned to life insurance as their primary source of protection." [p. 11, Life Insurance Handbook.]

If the insurance industry were really out to sell protection as the last sentence seems to imply, there would not be half as much criticism and distrust of the life insurance field as there is now. The only true protection insurance is term insurance.

Term insurance is protection for a certain time. When the time is up, the guarantee (or insurance) ends. There is usually no money coming if you are still alive and well. As long as a fee or premium is paid on the contract (policy), someone can collect when the insured person dies. Some life insurance agents and other people will say "term insurance is money down the drain. If you are healthy and live long, you will have paid in for many years without ever collecting."

Quite true. Term insurance is like fire insurance. If you never have a fire, you don't collect a cent either. Few people would consider that fire insurance premiums are money down the drain. They are thankful the house or business didn't have a fire. People know that fire insurance can never pay for the memories, family antiques and even life that is lost in fires.

And so also people should look at life insurance and be thankful their family has never needed the money from a death and instead had the father (or mother) living all those years. After all, the breadwinner is not a "money machine"! So, when you don't collect on a term life insurance policy, you can only be thankful.

Term insurance is the least expensive insurance. The reason is that it is calculated on the risk, and the field is more competitive. Here, too, however, it pays to shop around. Ask three or four agents to give you a price on the same policy. The premium can vary as much as 40% or 50%.

Many people are familiar with several kinds of term insurance. Your home, farm, or business mortgage may be life insured. You receive protection so that in case of your death, the mortgage is paid off by the insurance company. If you live, work, and pay off the mortgage, of course you have paid for the insurance without receiving any cash in return. But then, isn't that what was needed? Many other loans from banks, trust companies or credit unions are also life insured.

To provide care for a young family, either reducing term or renewable level term, or perhaps both, would be the best thing to buy. Reducing term is insurance you buy for a specific unchanging premium per year for a specific number of years, but the amount paid out in case of death decreases. For example, a 25-year old can buy $50,000 of twenty year decreasing term insurance for less than $100 per year. The second year he may be insured for only $48,000 and the third for $46,000. However, the basic thinking behind this kind of insurance is that if he lives and works, each year this person and his/her family will own a little more, whether it is paying off time instalments on furniture, paying off part of the mortgage, investing money, etc. As they become more established, their need for protection decreases.

Renewable level term is often a good idea. The amount of insurance remains level, for example, at $50,000. The premium goes up whenever the policy is renewed. This could be yearly, every five years (quite common) or any other length of time. Again, the idea is to protect against a financial difficulty.

Life insurance agents are paid commissions on the policies they sell. If they sell a policy with a $100 a year premium, obviously their commission will be lower than if they sell a $600 per year premium. However, the insurance customer may only be getting the same amount of protection, e.g. $50,000 under 2 different policies, for that big difference in premium.

Many agents are not eager to sell term insurance. Because premiums are so much lower, their commissions are lower. Because there is no "savings" being built up in term insurance, agents have no financial argument to persuade you to keep a policy. As a result they feel insecure selling term.

Next time:

Whole life and endowment insurance.

Pentecost and Missions

Sound of a mighty rushing wind and tongues of fire! Recorded for us in Acts 2 are these symbols of the presence of the Holy Spirit. Suddenly disciples could hear and speak many languages in that astounding hour. In the Spirit's power, barriers to communication were overcome.

But A Dove?
Yes, the gentle dove is the symbol of the Holy Spirit present at the baptism of Jesus, a visible messenger from heaven to show God's special favor on His Son. That dove has become precious to the Church too, because Christ gave the promise of the Spirit to His followers over and over again. "Comforter" really means "the one who gives strength"—strength to stand for truth, to speak boldly, to carry the Gospel into the far corners of His earth.

That same strength and power gives witnessing impact. He it is who calls and impels your missionaries into Kingdom frontiers. Praise God from whom all blessings flow!

Young people raise $11,000 for Lakewood

It was rather a cool evening with winter still lingering in the air. However, there was a real sense of excitement and anticipation as you entered the roller skating rink. Inside many young people were impatiently waiting to register for this unique event: "to roller skate for 200 laps around the rink within a two hour time period." Why all the excitement? Why the impatience? Why all the anticipation? It was Monday evening the night of the roller skate-a-thon to raise money for the conference-retreat centre at Lakewood Christian Conference Grounds at Forest, Ont.

A total of 147 young people from the Southwest and Trillium Leagues participated and most of them completed the 200 laps within 2 hours. The total amount of money sponsored was $11,355.50 by parents, friends, relatives and neighbours of the young people.

Several trophies and prizes were awarded that evening, with the trophy for the most money raised by a youth group going to Chatham First society; honorable mention were Woodstock, Sarnia Second, and Drayton. The most money raised trophy went to Teresa VanDasler of London with prizes going to John Vandendool, Woodstock; Lucille Verburg, Chatham I; Linda Tolisma, Chatham Grace; Linda Klooststra, Dresden; and Irene Klassen, Drayton.

Lakewood offers a place for children, young people, families and senior citizens to camp during the summer. The camping area will be expanded from a summer one to include year round activities and overnight facilities for retreats, meetings and conferences.

Canadians receive OIS scholarships

SIoux CENTER, IOWA—John Hiemstra, son of Mr. & Mrs. George Hiemstra of Terrace, B.C., and Geraldine Folkerts, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Jelle Folkerts of Tilley, Alta., received the Dutch Immigrant Society Scholarships at Dordt College.

The Dutch Immigrant Society of Grand Rapids, Mich., provides the annual $250 awards to upperclassmen that are immigrants or children of immigrants from the Netherlands.

John, a senior at Dordt, is majoring in social sciences and secondary education. He has been involved in meetings for public justice, a followup of the First International Christian Political Conference. He plans to return next year to continue his education in political science and eventually plans to teach.

Also a senior, Geraldine is majoring in natural science and elementary education. She taught Dutch to youngsters in a Dutch Roots group at Dordt this year. She hopes to return to Canada to teach in elementary school.

This work needs doing now!

FOOD FOR THE HUNGRY is a unique, world-wide non-profit emergency assistance and development organization, committed to meeting people's urgent and continuing needs. FH President, Dr. Larry Ward, a noted humanitarian, is a recognized authority on famine and disaster relief. In the past six years FH International, with headquarters in Oslo, Norway, has distributed more than seven million dollars in food, medical health supplies and needed emergency equipment.

DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE — helping people help themselves, mainly through the use of small-scale technology utilizing renewable energy sources. "Providing a goal rather than dole...a hand up rather than a hand-out."

RELIEF AID — moving swiftly when disaster strikes. This involves the stockpiling of massive amounts of food in strategic areas worldwide for instant use...and also pre-crisis negotiations in the developing countries, helping them with plans to combat emergencies.

EDUCATION — training and teaching the less fortunate...to help them attain higher health and sanitation standards and the skills of being self sufficient...plus providing information to Canadians about the needs of the developing nations, via publications, films, A/V presentations, Radio and Television.
